

GIVE A SHIITAKE. PEOPLE ARE HUNGRY.

On Thursday, February 25th, Lunch Money Day, thousands of Torontonians will take action to fight hunger and show that they 'give a fig'.

Wednesday, February 24, 2010 – Toronto – For Immediate Release:

Tomorrow is Lunch Money Day, when thousands of people across the city, at work, at school and in transit, will take action, and 'give a buck', to help those who are hungry in the GTA. The Lunch Money Day campaign is Second Harvest's single largest fundraising event.

Second Harvest relies on these donations to operate a compassionate food rescue and delivery program where excess fresh food is distributed to the city's most vulnerable populations. This food rescue and delivery program makes it possible for nutritious leftover food from restaurants, grocery stores, and corporations to be donated to those in need instead of wasted.

Show that you 'give a ham' about hungry people and participate in Lunch Money Day by:
